In Her Delirium She Says It Was a Woman, but What Woman?

Mrs. Cella Roberts, of 434 Broadway, Willismsburg, this morning lies in a dangerous condition from the effects of an assault on her by an unknown woman at 8.30 last evening. Mrs. Roberts is one of the prettiest women in Williamsburg, and is not aware of having an enemy. When opposite her home last evening she was struck on the back of the head and felled to the ground.

The injured woman was carried upstates to er room, and the only clue to her assailant is the remark: "That woman!" made every now and then as she tosses on her bed in pain. The police have so far been unable to dis-cover who her assallant was, and the relatives of the woman are very reticent con-ceraing the matter.

Her huseand was seen this morning by an Evening Women reporter, but absolutely re-fused to make any statement. The injured woman, it is believed from her ravings, knows who assaulted her. Who assaulted her.

Mrs. Roberts is twenty-seven years of age.
